UNITED WAY SHORT

Conrad Mauffray, executive secretary of the United Way of Hancock County, reports a total of $14,800 in collections and pledges towards the 1978 goal of $35,000 to date. The Federal Combined Agencies' pledges are not in yet, according to Mauffray, and that should total about another $15,000 making the total drive about $5,000 short of the goal. Wayne Ducomb Jr. is the 1978 chairman.

The Bay St. Louis Council Monday, in a recess meeting, authorized Mayor Larry Bennett to purchase two new cars from Turan-Lane Chevrolet for the Bay police department. Turan-Lane's bid was $11,890 for two units. Other bidders were Hille Oldsmobile and Schuffert Pontiac and Buick Motors.

Woods fires keeping local firemen busy

By RICH ADAMS

Bay St. Louis and Waveland fire departments reported a busy weekend, each logging 16 bush and grass fires within a three-day period.

The fire officials reported no injuries or structural damage as a result of the fires, but were called away from a brush fire Sunday to respond to a car fire on the Bay St. Louis-US-90 bridge.

According to Bay St. Louis officials, 16 individual fires were logged from Friday evening to Sunday evening.

Despite thick smoke from the fires, Bay Police Chief Douglas Williams reported no automobile accidents as a result of the reduced visibility and hazardous conditions.

Waveland Fireman John Wilkerson reported the Waveland fire department responded to 16 fires, with some of the calls requests for assistance from Bay St. Louis firemen.

The Waveland fireman said two or

SBA awards Betsy loan forgiveness

Genevieve Lynch of Garden Island has received a forgiveness on a loan from the Small Business Administration for home damages suffered in Hurricane Betsy.

Ms. Lynch procured a loan through the SBA and, as a result of a class action suit, has received a refund of that loan.

A letter from SBA Administrator A. Vernon Weaver states "As a result of the class action suit, the United States Court has found that certain individuals who suffered hurricane damages due to Hurricane Betsy in the states of Louisiana, Florida, and Mississippi, who borrowed more than $1,500 but less than $3,100 from SBA were not granted full forgiveness of up to $1,800 on that portion of their loan in excess of $500.

"We have determined you are in the group and entitled to additional forgiveness with interest at the rate of three percent thereon, which will be paid to you in the form of cash or credit, depending upon the status of your three of the fires were in the Waveland area, with all others being assistance calls from other departments.

Wilkerson said the Waveland department is responding to calls from Bayside Park and other fire departments in Hancock County because those fire departments have no trucks available.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner's Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson said the Sheriff's department has received no reports of fire-related automobile accidents, injuries, or structural damages.

Waveland man swims three miles to safety

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

A Waveland man swam nearly three miles through turbulent waters in the Mississippi Sound to safety after his boat capsized Monday off Buccaneer State Park.

Larry Krueck, 40, of 300 Piney Ridge Road, began sailing his catamaran in the Sound at approximately 10:45 a.m., stated Hancock Sheriff Sylvan Ladner.

Krueck said his sail propelled boat with two parallel hulls capsized around noon.

"The 25-foot-mast on my boat got stuck in the mud about three miles from the beach," explained Krueck. "also, the mast, which is supposed to be air tight wasn't, thereby adding to my inability to set sail again."

"I didn't want to struggle with the boat after the mast got stuck, so I decided I had better leave it there and swim to shore," continued the swimmer.

Krueck, wearing a life preserver and wet suit vest, reached the shore about 2:30 p.m.

Sheriff Ladner said, "Gerald Necaise from Long Beach flagged down David Peranich, driving a Mississippi Power Co. truck and asked him to go and

Mayor defends city in explosion threat

By RICH ADAMS

A Louisville and Nashville Railroad tank car leaking a highly-flammable chemical was stopped for repairs in Pass Christian after Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett blocked the Bay railroad bridge and refused to allow the train to re-enter Bay St. Louis.

The train had passed through Bay St. Louis at 8:20 a.m. Monday, and was stopped in Pass Christian after the leak was discovered.

A friction arose between Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis officials when Bay Mayor Larry Bennett ordered two police cars and a fire truck to block the Bay railroad bridge.

Railroad officials wanted to move the leaking tank car back through Bay St. Louis and Waveland, continuing through Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore to the sparsely inhabited community of Ansley in South Hancock County.

"They may own the railroad, but I'm in charge of Bay St. Louis and I'm not going to let a leaking car come in here," said Bennett.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams said the cars were not placed at the end of the bridge to stop passage of the train.

"The mayor didn't tell us to block the train. We were there in case anything happened or a fire broke out. I was there to protect the people of Bay St. Louis," Williams said.

Pass Christian Fire Chief George

Mixon, at the repair scene in Pass Christian, complained about the lack of communication from Mayor Bennett.

"I should send him (Bennett) a letter of appreciation, if our mayor hasn't already done so," Mixon said.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner said he would not permit the train to go through Lakeshore and Clermont Harbor to get to Ansley.

Pass fire and police departments evacuated Pass Christian Elementary and Junior High Schools and the residents in the area surrounding the tank car, which was leaking naphthalene at a rate of five gallons per hour.

The leak was halted about 11 a.m. after three Reichold Chemical Corp. officials were called to the scene.

Naphthalene is a non-toxic, highly flammable petroleum product lighter than water, similar to lighter fluid.

Naphthalene's vapors are heavier than air and insoluble in water. The chemical is a hydrocarbon resin used to make materials such as paint and tires, a Reichold official said.

A Coast Guard official at National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County said many factors such as wind speed and type of naphthalene determined the danger of explosion.

"Some naphtha products have a flash point of 85 degrees, while some go as high as 190 degrees. The leak was a relatively small one, and if the wind was three to five knots, there would be no hazard other than at the place of leakage," the official said.

Waveland Treasurer abolished

By EDGAR PEREZ

Veteran Waveland office holder Willie Bourgeois' name will not appear on the ballot in Tuesday's municipal elections for the first time in 32 years.

The office of the Treasurer of Waveland, which the 64-year-old Waveland native has held since 1946, was recently abolished by vote of the Waveland City Council.

The City Charter amendment abolishing the treasurer's post delegates his duties to the City Clerk. Bourgeois has expressed dismay at the loss of his position which carried compensation of $100 per month, and he

The Halloween Weekend which was celebrated Saturday and Sunday at Buccaneer proved to be a success. Campers were entertained on Friday night with horror movies which brought squeals of terror from many of the little campers! Saturday mornings' activities began with crafts-mask making and lantern making were on tap for the little ones.

Twenty five campers participated in the crafts session. That afternoon a Halloween Carnival took place at the Recreation Hall. Games were set up and each camper received prizes for his skill in the games offered.

Doughnuts and fruit punch were served after the carnival. A special treat was the Fortune Teller who was on hand for those interested in seeing what their future would bring.

Sitting under an orange canopy, the fortune teller was truly the center of attention at the afternoon activity, kids and grown-ups waited in the hot sun to check out the crystal ball.

For the little ones on Saturday evening, Trick or Treating was in order around the campground. Many of the campers participated in the night event and seemed to like the atmosphere of ghosts, witches, devils, clowns, vampires, and goblins which seemed to swarm through the campground loops.

A Teen Dance was scheduled in the Recreation Hall later in the evening. Many of the younger campers seemed to enjoy the juke box music. It was an interesting way to meet other guy and gals in the dim lit, decorated Recreation Hall.

Ghost Story Time drew a small crowd on Sunday morning, however, I do believe many of the younger campers were very tired from the previous days' activity. Culminating the weekend was a pumpkin carving contest, to which participants brought knives, spoons and pumpkins, turning the orange fruit of the vine into interesting creations.

This Weekend Activities for the weekend of November 3-5 at the Park include:

Friday: 8:30 p.m. Movie Recreation Hall-Wave, Tek Pool Free

Saturday: 11 a.m. Bicycle Hike

3 p.m. Basket Workshop-Recreation Hall-$1.25 fee ages 12 and up.

Gulfport Memorial Hospital shows 'greatest advance'

The greatest advance in diagnostic medicine since the discovery of x-rays will be on display at an open house at Memorial Hospital at Gulfport, Monday from 2 to 5 p.m. A brief program will be held at 2 p.m. in the hospital dining room, when city and county officials instrumental in the acquisition of the CT Scanner for the hospital will be recognized.

Tours will be available to the public on Nov. 6 from 2:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. and again on Sunday from 2 until 4 p.m.

Officials at Memorial Hospital at Gulfport will begin scanning patients on the new EMI Computed Tomography (CT) Scanner the first week in November and hailed the device as "The greatest advance in diagnostic medicine since the discovery of x-rays."

The EMI Scanner 5005 makes it possible to visualize detailed cross-sectional views of the head and body, and allows physicians to see abnormalities often too subtle to be detected by other methods.

Conventional x-ray produces images of different depths superimposed on each other, making it difficult to distinguish slight differences in density, as is often the case between a tumor and the healthy tissue surrounding it.

The CT Scanner can probe all areas of the head and body; even those which, in some cases, previously could only be viewed during surgery," said Dr. Frank Schmidt, director of the hospital's radiology department.

"The whole-body CT

scanner is valuable in helping to diagnose tumors, cysts, aneurysms, blood clots, and other abnormalities in tissue. In addition to early cancer detection, it can also be useful in monitoring the results of cancer therapy," he said.

Advantages of the new EMI Scanner are many. It is a non-invasive and painless procedure that takes less than an hour, reduces cost by not requiring hospitalization, and has replaced other more hazardous and complex procedures.

During the examination, the patient lies on the adjustable couch while it is automatically moved through the center opening of the scanning gantry, until the area of the head or body to be scanned is positioned directly below the x-ray source.

During scanning, x-ray intensity readings are continuously fed into the computer which calculates the relative densities of tissues within each cross-sectional slice. These measurements are used to create a picture which is projected on a video screen and photographed as a permanent record of the examination.

Patients scans are stored in the computer's memory, or on magnetic tape, and can be recalled at will for follow-up examinations by referring physicians and specialists.

The EMI Scanner 5005 is the most proven, most widely used CT scanner in the world today, having been installed in 300 hospitals and clinics worldwide.

"This marks a milestone for Memorial," said W.R. Burton, Administrator at Memorial. "It gives us capabilities not available in our area previously."

The unit is manufactured by EMI Medical Inc. in Northbrook, Ill., a U.S. subsidiary of EMI Ltd., the London-based pioneers of Computed Tomography.

THANK YOU

For the faith, confidence, trust, and cooperation, you, the citizens of Waveland, First Ward, have given me as your Alderman. I am completing a four year term, and have served the unexpired term of 8 months when our past Mayor, Garfield Ladner, passed away and our current Mayor was elected to replace Mayor Ladner. I then was elected Alderman to replace our present Mayor, who was then Alderman. The Mayor and other board members appointed and approved me to be the Mayor Pro-Tem for a full 4 year term, a position I currently hold.

During the last 4 years we have experienced a tremendous growth in Waveland. We have witnessed and participated in the completion of the Sewer Treatment System, Buccaneer State Park, Our Shopping Center, Waveland Civic Center, Waveland Library, Idlewood Subdivision, Waveland Elementary School Football Field, First Little League Baseball Teams and facilities, New Fire House, Fire Pumper Engine, and a full time paid Fire Department. We have just recently received a Million Dollar Grant for the upgrading of the Waveland Middletown Area. These are only a few of the things that have come to pass in Waveland. I am very proud of these accomplishments, and with continued efforts look forward to more and better growth.

The Town of Waveland was incorporated by the Legislature March 6, 1888. Numerous amendments have been made to the Charter since. The Amended Charter states there shall be a mayor and four alderman, one alderman elected by and from the Citizens of each ward. The Mayor shall act in the superintending of all City employees and department heads. The Mayor shall be responsible for the daily operation of the City. The Mayor has a Secretary who acts as City Clerk. The Mayor has delegated to the City Clerk the authority to act in his behalf during the daily operation of the City along with his consultation. The Alderman act in the legislative position. The Alderman (approve or reject) all minutes of prior meetings, payroll, bills, make ordinances, resolutions. The Alderman are part time. They, acting in the legislative position, do not become directly involved in the daily operation of the City business. This is the process which makes America a great country.

I stated in the Sea Coast Echo, October 26, 1978 when I announced my candidacy for re-election as Alderman, my family status, business relations, and organizations to which I belong and participate in. I was born and reared in Waveland, educated in the Public School Systems and was graduated from Bay High School in 1950. I feel that with my past and present experience in City Government, my business relation with the public and my being available at all times in the local area for consultation with the citizens and other officials I am qualified to seek re-election as Alderman, Ward 1, Waveland, Mississippi. I maintain a 24 hour a day, 365 days a year phone company recording service which I think is an asset to the citizens of Ward One to communicate with their alderman. I have and intend to answer all calls.

I have enjoyed visiting with most of the citizens of Ward One to date, I look forward to calling on each of you personally before election day. In the event I do not see you it will be time not permitting. I would appreciate your vote and support on November 7, I would truly be humbled and honored to serve you for the next four years. My phone number is 467-7186 or 467-3052. I would appreciate your calling on any matter of concern.

Thanks,
Charles W. Johnson

We must stop busing our children!

It is a shame to think that approximately 200 children of Hancock County must be bused 70 miles round trip to school each day.

These children live in the Pearlington, Ansley, Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore areas and attend school at Hancock North Central.

We can remember when we thought it was a long bus ride just for three miles to school.

One way to eliminate this long bus ride would be by supporting the County School bond issue on Tuesday, November 7, 1978.

The school bond issue will finance construction of a new school in the south central part of Hancock County.

The bond issue also will pay for the addition of classrooms at Hancock North Central to help eliminate the overcrowded conditions there, and also to eliminate those trailers used as classrooms.

As we have mentioned on other occasions, we still do not see any reason whatsoever for our children to have to use trailers for classrooms and that also includes the Bay St. Louis Municipal School System.

You would think we were in the horse and buggy days. Our county helped in many ways in putting a man on the moon and our children have to travel up to 35 miles one way to school and then attend classes in a trailer. We should all be ashamed of ourselves for letting things like this happen.

We all know the children of today are the leaders of tomorrow, but, sometime, we seem to forget that important factor when we think of their education.

Our children should have the best teachers and facilities money can buy and the only way to get the best facilities is to vote for the bond issue next Tuesday.

We can hear some of you crying now about how much it will raise taxes.

We are told the first year a 10 mill increase will be needed and then the next year a two mill reduction will be given.

The average taxpayer will pay additional taxes of less than $15 the first year and less than $10 after the second year.

Give our kids a break. Let's stop busing them half a day, give them more time to be kids and not commuters, vote yes for the County School Board bond issue on Tuesday.

Home insurance rates may drop in Waveland

A recent inspection of Waveland by the Mississippi State Rating Bureau in Jackson has resulted in the city's fire insurance rating being lowered from a class nine to a class eight, which may result in lower fire insurance rates.

"This rating decrease could possibly lower insurance premiums one-third in the city," said Waveland Mayor John Longo.

"This will mean a delightful savings to the people in Waveland in dollars and cents. I'm especially proud of Waveland firemen...they did most of the work," the mayor added.

In a letter to the mayor, Ralph E. Laughlin, chief engineer of the State Rating Bureau, said the classification change came about due to advanced fire defenses in Waveland.

According to the letter, the advanced fire defenses are due to paid fire departments, a new well north of the railroad tracks, a fire station north of the railroad tracks, a new pumper truck at Waveland Station No. 2 giving the city pumper trucks on both sides of the tracks.

Revisions in class ratings are being sent to all Waveland insurance agents advising the agents of the classification changes.

"Any insurance contracts covering dwellings which have inception on or after October 1, 1978, may be endorsed from October 27, 1978, on a pro-rated basis to take advantage of fire premiums indicated for 'Eight Class Towns' revision No. 17, effective October 1, 1978," the Rating Bureau said.

Laughlin's letter to Mayor Longo commended to fire protection in the city.

"Your interest in fire protection and prevention is commended, and we will be happy to be of assistance should you call upon us," the letter concluded.

"The first three lines of that amendment are a falsehood," Bourgeois maintains. "I have faithfully executed the duties of my office for more than 30 years, and that can be verified with the vice president of the Merchants Bank in Waveland."

"Garfield Ladner would turn over in his grave if he knew how I'm being treated," Bourgeois lamented.

Bourgeois was first elected treasurer in 1946 on a ticket with the former mayor of Waveland, Garfield Ladner, who is now deceased.

The charter amendment was approved by Councilmen Albert Grass, Dan Campion and Herman Yarborough. Councilman Charles Johnson was absent from the meeting.

The amendment requires approval from the governor, which is considered routine. After publication according to

Dear Sir:

North Bay Elementary School celebrated Halloween with a carnival, Friday, October 27. Booths and contests were enjoyed by all. The carnival was a tremendous success, but would not have been without the help of many people.

We would like to thank the parents who worked so very hard. There were those who donated time, energy, and money as well as refreshments and other booth items. We want these very special people to know how much we appreciate them.

We received an overwhelming response from the community toward our Halloween Carnival and we hope that we will continue to receive the support of the community in the future.

Postmaster's reply

Oct. 23, 1978

Honorable Trent Lott
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C.

Dear Congressman Lott:

This is in response to your correspondence of September 5 and 12, on behalf of Mr. C.W. Harris and Mr. James Lee of Bay St. Louis, concerning recent route adjustments in the area.

Prior to the most recent adjustment, Bay St. Louis rural routes were not designed for maximum efficiency and economy. Their commingled nature resulted in considerable unnecessary travel.

Inasmuch as the amount of carrier travel is a major factor in determining the cost of rural delivery service, this situation was unnecessarily costly.

Our field managers have the responsibility to identify and alleviate such inefficient operational structures.

Unfortunately, the commingling was not corrected in June, 1977 when route adjustments were last made. At that time, changes were necessary because a route had become overburdened and simply too long for a single carrier to properly service.

The Postal Service recognizes the potential inconvenience which would be caused as a result of adjustments in rural route address designations. Consequently, our policy in delivery service adjustment matters is to: (1) encourage affected customers to notify their correspondents of their correct address and ZIP code number; (2) ask local newspapers to publicize major service adjustments when practicable; and (3) notify publishers and bulk mailers regularly mailing to customers within the affected area.

All mail is redirected, if necessary, to the address without charging additional postage for a period of one year from the end of the month in which the postal change occurs.

Change of address notices are furnished to affected customers merely for their own convenience in notifying correspondents of the new address.

Their use is not mandatory, and the notification can be accomplished through the normal exchange of correspondence.

I have advised our Southern Regional Postmaster General of the concern expressed by your constituents who experienced address adjustments in 1977, and again in August of this year.

I have asked him to assure that every consideration is provided their mailing needs consistent with our regulations.

Sincerely,
William F. Bolger
Postmaster General

FOOD for THOUGHT

An Agricultural Concern Of Interest to Everyone

Throughout the food marketing industry, average wage hikes slowed to eight percent last year, the smallest increase in the past four years.

In 1977, returns to farmers for the food they grew actually decreased about two percent.

And for the first time in 1977, the overall cost of paying the wages of those people involved in marketing food exceeded the total amount all farmers received for growing the food.

Rocks shoot for victory in East Central Contest

By RICH ADAMS
The St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chows travel to East Central Friday night after suffering a 32-14 loss against the Pass Christian Pirates last week.

The Rocks, now 5-3 overall and 4-2 in Pascagoula River Conference play, meet the Hornets with a 2-5 conference record in a game where the Rocks promise to "shoot for a winning season," said Stanislaus head coach Bill Poole.

"At the first of the season, I heard East Central was a young team. But they have strengthened up over the season. They just beat Grand Bay, a fine Alabama team," coach Poole said.

"Pass had an excellent team which executed well and was very fast. But our boys want to win this one," he continued.

"We're going to shoot for a winning season. This game means a lot to these boys," Poole added.

The Rocks suffered two injuries during practice this week which might effect the offensive line.

Offensive tackle's Keith Favre and David Handshoe were injured during practice this week, Favre suffering a broken collarbone which will leave him out of the East Central Contest.

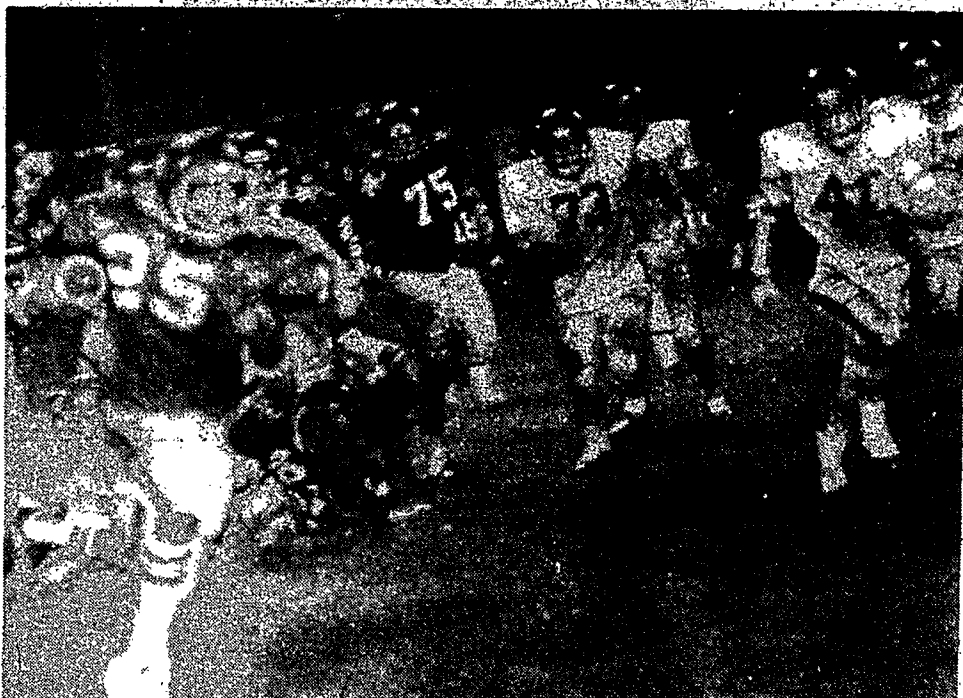

Handshoe is still in a sling for a shoulder injury, and might not be able to play Friday, coach Poole said.

Gametime for Friday's contest is 7:30 p.m. at East Central.

The Rock's final game will be Friday, November 10 at home against Vancleave.

HNC, Poplarville face off in upland rivalry

By RICH ADAMS
Hancock North Central's gridiron squad faces a tough Poplarville squad Friday after the Hawks lost to Notre Dame last week, breaking a Hawk's unbeaten streak and handing HNC their first defeat in 20 regular season games.

Hawk head coach Irvin Favre said he doesn't know how last week's loss will affect the HNC squad's morale.

"It is hard to tell if the Notre Dame loss has done any damage to the squad," said Favre.

"We've got to try to put the loss out of our minds. The Notre Dame game was a game of football, just like any other game, and you have to bounce back after you get beat," Favre continued.

"It really hurts when we lose after 18 wins. It is hard to accept," coach Favre added. Coach Favre said the Poplarville team, although 1-7 in its conference, is a tough physical team.

"They play good schools and have a tough schedule. This is a rival game for us. It is Poplarville's final game of the season...it is bound to be a tough game," said coach Favre.

The Hawks are 8-1 for the season following last week's loss.

The HNC squad has one more game after the Poplarville game, a home game against second place Pass Christian in the Pascagoula River Conference. Gametime for the Hawks in Poplarville is 7:30 p.m.

This race is sailed each year in honor of Tom Brennan, father and grandfather of the Brennan clan.

On the same day at noon the Gulf Coast section will sail to the Pass Christian Yacht Club from the Gulfport Yacht Club where the boats will converge with the boats from New Orleans to sail a two-race series Saturday and Sunday.

On Saturday and Sunday the one-design classes will sail a three-race series, two on Saturday and one on Sunday.

PCYC hosts annual Frostbite Regatta

The Pass Christian Yacht Club will host the annual Frostbite Regatta Friday at 8 a.m. in Lake Ponchartrain, which is sailed for the Buddy Beyer Memorial Trophy.

Last year 80 boats sailed in the annual race, making it one of the largest private regattas sponsored by a Gulf Yacht Club.

One important feature of the race is the Easterly Class, better known as the Brennan Series.

Known classes sailing in the one-design series are Flying Scots (open only), Lasers, Sunfish, Lightnings, Hobies, 470's, Stars, and Fish Boats.

There will also be an old-timers race in Flying Scots, a two-race series, one on both Saturday and Sunday.

The skipper and each crew member must be age 50 or older.

INSECT PESTS

Whether you're picnicking, gathering wild berries, hiking, or often just mowing the grass at home, ticks and chiggers are always a potential problem.

There are ways to prevent these parasites from attaching themselves to you, say the outdoor recreation experts at Mercury outdoors.

One of their standard remedies is an old-fashioned method that was used by America's earliest pioneers, and is still effective today.

Tigers, Eagles meet in weekend contest

By RICH ADAMS
The Bay High Tigers with a 1-7 overall record are hoping for a victory against the St. John Eagles in Milner Stadium in Gulfport Saturday.

The Eagles, registering an overall 1-9 record and an 0-7 winless Pascagoula Conference tally, meet the Tigers on Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.

The Tigers had a week off last week with an open date, and Bay High head coach Billy Rhodes said he isn't sure if the week off helped his squad or did damage.

"We've had a lot of real good practices," Rhodes said. "We're absolutely ready for this game...the only matter is if this lay off hurt the team. Sometimes it helps, sometimes it hurts. It's a funny thing."

Coach Rhodes said the Tigers have activated most of their previously injured players, but some starters are still out and others are doubtful.

St. John, despite the losing record, may prove to be a tough contender for the Tigers.

"Karl Funk, the St. John quarterback, is a fine player. He throws well and runs well. The offense mixes up their plays well...they throw and run an equal number of times," said Rhodes.

"They haven't had too much success scoring, and it is good to face a team with a record close to ours," he added.

"This is one we can win-we just have to get in there and play," coach Rhodes said.

The game will be played at Milner Stadium at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

CG seeks further public input on boat signals

The U.S. Coast Guard is inviting public comment on proposed regulations dealing with manufacturing specifications and approval procedures for visual distress signals on recreational boats.

The proposed regulations will be published in the October 23 issue of the Federal Register.

The Coast Guard also is requesting comments from the public on related regulations which would require recreational boaters to carry various types of visual distress signals.

These proposed regulations were published on April 10, and the comment period originally ended on August 8. The period is extended to December 22.

The Coast Guard said the proposed regulations on visual distress signal manufacturing specifications and approval procedures are designed to insure the effectiveness, reliability, and safety of visual distress signals that may be used on recreational boats and other vessels. They would:

(1) Establish manufacturing specifications for three new visual distress signals that would be required on recreational boats under the proposed operator requirements. The new specifications deal with red aerial pyrotechnic flares, electric distress lights, and distress flags.

(2) Amend the current specifications for various distress signals such as pyrotechnic distress signals and signal flares.

Among the changes proposed would be new labeling and marking requirements to inform new users of the service life of pyrotechnic signals, and a new test for hot slag drippings from hand-held signal flares.

(3) Establish new procedures by which independent testing labs could be recognized or accepted by the Coast Guard to test new equipment and materials requiring Coast Guard approval.

These new procedures would remove the Coast Guard from factory inspection operations and place greater responsibility for quality control on the manufacturer of the approved equipment or material.

This proposal applies not only to the approved of visual distress signals but other types of approved safety equipment as well.

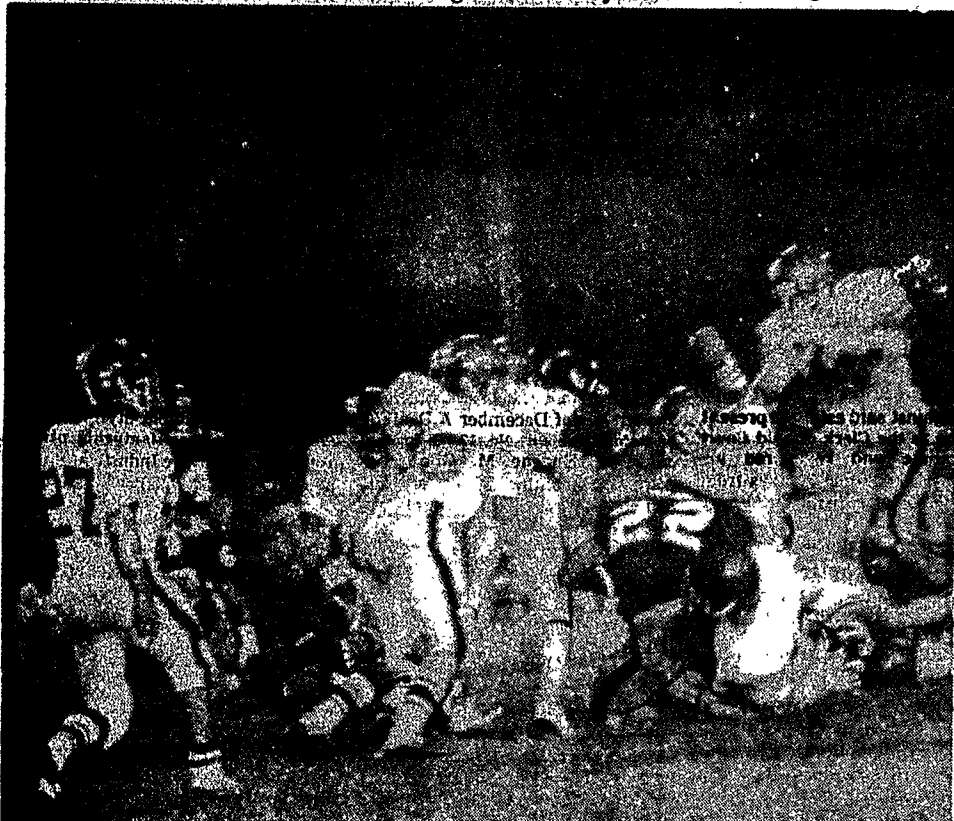

The public comment period on these proposed regulations also ends until December 22.

Any interested person may obtain a copy of the proposed regulations by contacting Robert L. Markle, Office of Merchant Safety (G-MMT-3-81), U.S. Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington, D.C. (Telephone: 202-426-1444).

Pirates matched against young Long Beach squad

By RICH ADAMS
Bob Lumpkin's rebuilt Pirate defense, which surprised the St. Stanislaus Rocks last week in a 32-14 rout, will be tested against a young Long Beach squad Friday in Pirate Stadium.

Coach Lumpkin said he is proud of the way his team handled the Rock-A-Chows last week, and hopes his squad can contain the Bearcats in the same manner.

"I'm proud of the way the defense hit last week. St. Stanislaus wasn't ready for us," said the Pirate helmetman.

"Long Beach is a big school, and has almost three times as many people on their team as we do. They will be a tough ballteam to beat," he continued.

"Long Beach will be fired up...this is the last game of the season for the Bearcats, and there is no tomorrow for them," he added.

The Pass crew is in "fair physical shape" according to Lumpkin, and no major injuries are reported.

"We have the bumps and bruise type injuries, which is not unusual for this time of year," Lumpkin said.

Game time for the clash is 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Patrons of the Margaret Reed Crosby Memorial Library in Picayune, art buffs and the general public are invited to a two-part exhibition of paintings, watercolors, drawings and graphics which opened Wednesday.

Two hundred year old English portraits from the hands of Thomas Hudson, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Sir Thomas Lawrence and other luminaries of the Royal Academy, London, comprise the collection of older works.

Approximately three times in number, the other part of the exhibition is a 1936-1978 collection of regional Mississippi-Louisiana works which include those of Alan Flattmann, William Hollingsworth, Walter Anderson, Andrew Bucci, Ann Cooper and many others.

Among regional artists whose works are included in the current exhibition at Memorial Library is Flattmann of Perkinston.

A native of New Orleans, Flattmann studied under the late John McCready, and was chosen to complete the mural begun by McCready in Picayune's Grace Church.

The library is open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

The exhibit will be on display during the month of November during regular library hours.

Study habits theme of Education Week

During American Education Week, Nov. 12-18, local schools and the State Department of Education are promoting perfection of good study habits.

"The State Department of Education recommends that every parent and every student consider adopting the following guidelines to quality education," says Dr. Charles Holladay, State Superintendent of Education.

Things students are asked to do to promote good study habits include the following:

Bring a book home every day.
Devote one hour to home study or pleasure reading each school day.
Double check homework for accuracy and neatness.
Restrict or limit the amount of time for watching television.

Ag Affairs

by Ed Blake

Don't look up yet expecting to see a blimp hovering over somebody's lower forty, but in an era of high energy costs, the airship may yet become a sensible alternative to conventional airplanes, helicopters and satellites for many agricultural tasks.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has released a study made last year in Virginia which analyzed the performance records of airships presently in operation and speculated upon the potential uses of airships in the future.

As a result of their study NASA concludes that airships must not be overlooked in future developments for agricultural purposes.

The blimp's low-speed maneuverability, great endurance, large payload, and a ability to operate from limited ground facilities make it very attractive for certain agricultural tasks.

America's fleet of airships presently consists of three blimps built and operated for publicity purposes by the Goodyear Aerospace Corporation, and a few privately-developed experimental dirigibles of various descriptions.

The Goodyear crafts are proven designs based on that company's decades of experience in designing, developing, and building dozens of lighter-than-air machines for the U.S. government.

In the last 50 years, more than one million passengers have been carried safely on various Goodyear publicity blimps. Undoubtedly the major reason for their excellent safety record has been their use of nonflammable helium as the lifting gas rather than the explosive hydrogen of earlier days that created some unforgettable disasters.

Blimps hold an edge over fixed or rotary aircraft when used for sensing instruments, visual observation, and survey operations, mainly because of their ability to slow down to a literal standstill, thus providing much finer picture resolution.

This slow-as-a-turtle capability is especially suitable for accurate land surveys, crop inventories and water pollution studies.

And what's more, it can slowly descend to earth to gather samples or make on-the-spot physical examinations. This capability greatly enhanced the worth of the Graf Zeppelin's 1931 expedition to the Arctic as it was able to descend to the sea surface to collect data.

The descent application is especially worthwhile if American aquaculture is to develop offshore waters. In this work the U.S. Coast Guard operates at a handicap using patrol planes and cutters.

Blimps not only can patrol vast stretches of fishing grounds but can descend and lower rafts and personnel for sea surface missions.

Airships, however, rate low in crop dusting or other aerial application tasks in agriculture, according to Frank Hogan, Goodyear blimp pilot and assistant manager of aircraft operations.

The pilot faults the blimp in this respect because the craft is unable to maintain a desired buoyancy while continually releasing part of its weight in materials onto the ground. The distance required to complete a turn is another hindrance in crop dusting or spraying operations.

Yet opportunities in hoisting and moving logs and livestock for short distances over unstable ground conditions are bright. It would be particularly adapted to logging operations in timber areas where the construction of truck roads is particularly damaging to the environment. Airships would need no roads at all and would not produce the undesirable noise and downwash characteristic of heavy-lift helicopters.

From a safety standpoint, airships under most circumstances could be safely landed even with the total loss of power, while mid-air collisions would be unlikely as they would be used primarily in remote regions or locations removed from established airways.

Legal Secretaries hold 'Day in Court'

The Harrison and Hancock Counties Legal Secretaries Association held its annual Day-in-Court Program at the Harrison County Courthouse in Gulfport Saturday, October 21.

The National Association of Legal Secretaries has been sponsoring Day-in-Court programs since 1956 for that purpose of affording the general public an opportunity to visit local courts and gain firsthand knowledge of the function of the judicial system.

Circuit Judge J. Ruble Griffin told how a jury was empaneled and selected at tendants at the program to sit as jurors, going through some of the questions they would be asked by the judge and the attorneys.

The program, "The Preparation and Defense of a Medical Malpractice Case," was presented by attorneys Larry Lenoir, Thomas Stennis II, and Grier Gregory, who, in narrative form, condensed the testimony of many medical and lay witnesses and presented exhibits during the mock trial.

The program was attended by legal secretaries, attorneys, medical assistants, student nurses and students from Phillips College.

Chamber members take first Industrial Tour

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Members of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce toured the Industries of Hancock County at Port Bienville, NSTL and Hancock County's Pearl River Vo-Tech last Thursday.

A chartered bus picked up chamber members at the Bay St. Louis Shopping Center and Our Shopping Center in Waveland.

Dick Thomas, president of the chamber welcomed everyone and introduced A.J. Turner, a director of the C of C and tour chairman.

First stop was at Hancock County's Pearl River Vo-Tech at Stennis International Airport.

Al Bourgeois, director of the school, explained the functions of the school. A tour of the school programs in progress were visited by the group.

The automotive section, the building trades, industrial electrical, welding, business and nursing classes were viewed.

Bourgeois explained the school has approximately 155 high school students from Bay High, Hancock North Central and St. Stanislaus during the day and some 100 to 150 each night in adult class.

The Vo-Tech also gives G.E.D. tests and are able to teach just about any class if there are enough people interested in a particular subject.

Refreshments and snacks were served before boarding the bus for the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL).

Terry Malone, showed a slide presentation and told of the role NSTL has played and is playing today in the space program.

Malone also told of the different governmental agencies now headquartered at the site and what the future holds for the surrounding areas of NSTL.

Lunch was eaten at the snack bar and a bus tour was taken of the site.

Particular interest was given to the test stand where the Apollo rockets were fired before taking the first man to the moon.

On the visit to Hancock County's Industrial Park at Port Bienville, the Chamber group was greeted by Wilson Webre, port and harbor executive director.

A walking tour was made of Bienville Steel, the Terminal at Port Bienville, Easterly's Yacht's and Marine Concrete Services, Inc.

A drive through Bergeron Marine, Inc. builders of concrete barges was taken.

A.J. Turner, manager of Marine Concrete Structures, showed the group his "million dollar hole in the ground". Turner said the hole is used to build concrete barges and is then filled with water and they are floated out after a lock is opened.

The hole is the largest in this country and there are very few in existence, according to Turner.

Norton Haas, gave a historical talk about Gainesville, (NSTL now occupies the community) and also talked about the Port and Harbor as he was an original director on the first board.

The group returned to Waveland at 4 p.m. and proceeded to Bay St. Louis.

CD secretary completes preparedness program

Dorothy Bielstein, secretary for the Bay-Waveland Hancock County Civil Defense Council, has completed the U.S. Defense Civil Preparedness Agency's (DCPA) basic seminar on the responsibilities and goals of national and local civil defense programs.

The seminar was held Oct. 23-27 at DCPA Region 3 headquarters in Thomasville, Ga.

"Purpose of the basic seminar is primarily to provide new local civil defense coordinator and other civil defense personnel with basic information about civil defense programs and responsibilities—and let them know what resources are available to them in carrying out their duties," Harris M. Pope, DCPA Region 3 director said.

Pope said the major objectives of the basic seminar are to:

Familiarize local civil defense coordinators with the program elements that make up the civil defense system.

Explain in broad terms the role of the local civil defense coordinator within the civil defense program.

Describe the federal assistance programs available to communities for civil defense.

Explain the eligibility requirements for participation in the federal assistance programs.

Identify resources available to local coordinators.

And to help them prepare a plan of action.

In addition to the basic seminar, civil defense personnel can also enroll in four career "phase" courses, advanced workshops and graduate seminars, Pope said.

The Defense Civil Preparedness Agency is concerned with preparedness to cope with possible nuclear disasters, natural disasters such as hurricanes, tornadoes and floods, and manmade disasters such as explosions and large-scale accidents that could involve trains, trucks or airplanes.

DCPA Region 3 consists of eight states. They are Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

Students are targets in emergency program

Governor Cliff Finch has proclaimed the week of November 6-11 as "EMS Week" in Mississippi, calling upon "state and local officials to assist hospital administrators and physicians, fire departments, mobile medical and other public safety agencies in improving their emergency medical services."

In conjunction with the Governor's Proclamation, the Division of Emergency Medical Services for the Mississippi State Board of Health has launched an EMS public awareness program for that week aimed principally at the state's students.

An informational "packet" of material suitable for distribution and display is being sent to each high school, junior college, and senior college library in the state.

According to Wade Sprull, EMS Division Director for the Board of Health, "We hope that the teachers and counselors will emphasize the importance of this material and, also, sponsor follow-up activities on the topic."

"In addition, during 'EMS Week' and the subsequent winter months, our office will offer its Staff Representatives for the purpose of making presentations or classroom lectures at schools across the state," he added.

Sprull points out that recent statistics made available to his office show that up to 30 percent of the poor outcomes from medical emergencies might be avoided through improved performance, especially on the part of the lay citizen. "The Governor's Proclamation and the associated activities should contribute to such improved performance," he notes.

Little Theater schedules three-day run for 'Lion'

Bay St. Louis Little Theater will stage its production of "Lion, In Winter" next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Nov. 9-11, at its Boardman Street Theater. The production offers classic tongue-in-cheek humor, sophisticated clever dialogue and a cast which brings professionalism and fresh talent, all in the English court costumes of 1183, a theater spokesman said.

Henry II, King of England, and wife Eleanor perform a classic verbal battle to determine which of their three sons will inherit the throne following Henry's demise. Will it be Eleanor's choice of the oldest son Richard, a mass of brute strength and able mind? Perhaps John, Henry's choice, the baby, weak of mind and will, will inherit. Or will it be the often overlooked middle son, Geoffrey, ignored by all, but possessing the cunning intelligence and physical appearance sought by all the perfect ruler? What of Alais? Sister of the King of France, mistress of Henry, but intended for Richard. And who will Philip, King of France, support? The cast includes Ed Craig, Frances Frankiewicz, John Wideman, Stuart Allen, Loren Hoover, Rebecca Markel and Hansel Baxter. The Ed Craig production introduces Gertrude Stanton as director. The play should spark a renewal of interest in English history as well as provide a most enjoyable evening of entertainment. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tickets are available at the door.

AG files suit against Harrison spa operator

Attorney General A.F. Summer has filed suit against New Dimensions Health Spa and its operator Carl Price under Mississippi's Consumer Protection Law in the Chancery Court of Harrison County.

The suit alleges that the management of the Health Spa in Gulfport sold life-time memberships over the last few months and then closed its operation without providing refunds or adjustments.

The Consumer Protection Division of Summer's office in filing the suit also alleges that the office served an administrative subpoena on the defendants for their business and membership records and that the Spa management has failed or refused to turn over all requested information.

The Court was asked (1) to require that the records be turned over to the Attorney General; (2) to order the defendants to cease transferring any assets; (3) to require the defendants to make refunds to spa members who had purchased such memberships; and (4) to order the defendants to pay civil penalties of $500 for each violation to the State of Mississippi.

Chancery Judge Johnny Morris issued an order setting the case for hearing on Nov. 14 in Gulfport.

Mrs. Conrad LeBlanc will be in charge of the monthly luncheon-social to be held at noon Wednesday, November 8, in parish hall.

YOU AND YOUR PET

KEEPING WILD PETS

You're bored with owning a dog or cat. You want something different. The answer is a snake, a raccoon or a tarantula spider, right? Wrong!

Some people mistakenly think wild or exotic pets are more interesting or easier to care for. Unfortunately, this is rarely the case. All animals make the same demands for proper housing, food and medical care.

You should consider the same questions whether you buy a domestic or exotic pet: Is it healthy? Can I house and feed it? Does it have any special needs?

Buying a healthy animal is a lot harder when you're not too knowledgeable about the animal you wish to purchase. Let your veterinarian familiarize you with an exotic species.

Examine the pet closely before you buy, and schedule an early visit to your veterinarian soon after the pet arrives in your home.

In deciding where to keep the pet, note that animals and birds from the tropical areas require more warmth than most cats and dogs. Their living quarters should be draft-proof as well as escape-proof. Considerable damage has been done by "escaped" monkeys and large parrots. Certain animals require special accommodations inside the cage too.

Snakes are unhappy in full view all day long and need a retreat — a large piece of broken flower pot, or hollow piece of wood. Lizards accustomed to licking rain from wet foliage may not drink from a bowl. You can satisfy their moisture requirement by placing a wet plant in the cage each morning.

Make sure you know what your new pet will eat before you buy it. Although reptiles do not eat often, many times their food must be live, or they will refuse to eat and starve. The same rule holds for certain large spiders. Your veterinarian can help you design a balanced diet, including vitamin supplements, for most pets.

Keeping a wild pet is not an easy job. Monkeys, for instance, are extremely susceptible to tuberculosis; even zoos have problems keeping them well. And there are few sprays or vaccines that are marketed for use on wild animals.

Such animals as raccoons, skunks or otters are susceptible to both cat and dog diseases, and must be immunized against both feline and canine distemper.

Most veterinarians discourage keeping wild mammals (warm-blooded animals) as pets. When these animals are captured in the wild, it is impossible to be sure they are free from rabies, a disease fatal to man.

There is, in fact, a constant reservoir of rabies in the native population of skunks, raccoons, bats, foxes and other wild mammals. Every year, cases are reported where wild animals held in captivity suddenly begin to show signs of rabies after weeks or months of apparent good health.

In such situations, all human beings in contact with the affected animals must undergo a series of therapeutic injections.

If you are determined to keep a wild pet, try to find someone who has kept your type of animal before, so that you can learn something about its disposition. Wild pets are often independent creatures, and may disappoint you with their lack of affection.

Also make sure that your new pet fits into your normal household routine. Some animals are active only at night, and quickly bore owners who seek a sleeping ball of fur day after day.

If you travel frequently, check before buying for someone in your vicinity willing to care for your pet while you are away.

Some wild pets are being domesticated with considerable success. Gerbils (small mouse-like rodents) are now common in pet stores across the country.

Chameleons, small frogs and toads, easily satisfied with a diet of raw meat and small bugs, add life and interest to balanced terrariums.

The demand for wild animals as pets is, of course, causing problems. For every 10 animals captured for dealers, only one or two survive long enough to be sold. And the growing interest in exotic animals is encouraging a black market in endangered species.

One last caution: an exotic pet is easier to acquire than to discard. Zoos flooded with pleas to accept partially tamed raccoons and the like probably will not take your pet if you tire of it.

The pet store where you purchased your lizard, snake or spider will want it only if it's in saleable condition — well-fed and healthy.

And pets turned loose in woods or fields after a period of captivity may starve before they learn to catch their own food.
